President Raul Castro Returns to Cuba from Venezuela

Havana, March 19 (RHC) -- Cuban President Raúl Castro has returned to Cuba from a trip to Venezuela, where he participated in the Extraordinary Summit of the Bolivarian Alliance of the Peoples of Our Americas, ALBA.

The meeting was held to put forward the regional common position against the United States interference in the internal affairs of Venezuela.

During the meeting that took place at the presidential palace in Miraflores, Cuba reiterated its unconditional support of the Bolivarian Revolution in Venezuela.

The Cuban president also reiterated Cuba's rejection of US President Barack Obama's move that declared Caracas a threat to US national security.
