

Nearly 200 U.S. Lawmakers Suing Trump for Violating Constitution

Washington, June 16 (RHC)-- In the United States, nearly 200 Democratic congressional representatives are suing President Donald Trump, accusing him of violating the Emoluments Clause of the Constitution by accepting millions of dollars in payments from foreign governments to his companies while serving as U.S. president.

The attorneys general of Maryland and D.C. have filed a similar lawsuit against Donald Trump, who is finding himself coming under increasingly hostile fire after less than six months into his presidency.
