

Cuban national parliament convened for an extraordinary session

Havana, May 28 (RHC)-- The Cuban Council of State has convened the National Assembly of People's Power -- the national parliament -- to meet in extraordinary session on Saturday, June 2nd.

This is the first time the body meets after it was installed in its 9th legislature last April 19th.

According to a state's council announcement, the meeting's agenda includes the approval of the membership of the parliament's permanent committees, an analysis of the local government experiment that is being conducted in the provinces of Artemisa and Mayabeque, and the approval of the Constitutional reform process and of the commission that will draft the country's new Magna Carta.

Approval of the parliamentary friendship groups is also included on the agenda.
