Florida reports huge surge in daily cases of coronavirus

Miami, July 2 (RHC)-- Florida has reported 10,000 new confirmed coronavirus cases for the first time.

That daily number is six times higher than the daily record less than a month ago. The state also reported 67 deaths for the second time in a week.

The seven-day average for daily deaths is now back over 40, a 30 percent increase from two weeks ago. The state's death rate peaked at 60 per day in early May and declined to 30 by mid-June.
