

Iranian Nuclear Talks Extended Again

Vienna, July 8 (RHC)-- Iran and world powers have extended talks on a nuclear deal for another few days after missing a self-imposed deadline Tuesday.

U.S. officials say they are still hoping to secure a deal by Thursday, the last day before a mandatory U.S. congressional review period jumps from 30 days to 60 days.

The talks have already been extended past a previous deadline of June 30th. The White House says a deal is close but differences remain.

<https://www.radiohc.cu/en/noticias/internacionales/61835-iranian-nuclear-talks-extended-again>

Radio Habana Cuba