

ICE to Launch Raids Across the U.S. Against Undocumented Teenagers

Washington, July 24 (RHC)-- In the U.S., the Immigrations and Custom Enforcement agency, or ICE, is planning to launch a series of nationwide raids this week targeting undocumented teenagers for deportation.

According to an internal ICE memo, the raids will target 16- and 17-year-olds who are accused of having ties to gangs. The criteria ICE is using to assess possible gang affiliation includes whether teenagers have tattoos, wear clothing typical to a gang or even spend time in an area that's known to have gangs.

The National Immigration Law Center in Los Angeles has criticized law enforcement's methods, saying: "We have seen babies labeled as potential gang members."
