

Woman accusing U.S. Supreme Court justice Clarence Thomas of sexual harassment calls for impeachment

Washington, Feb 22 (RHC)-- In the United States, a woman who has accused U.S. Supreme Court Justice Clarence Thomas of sexual harassment is calling for his impeachment from the bench.

Journalist Angela Wright-Shannon says Thomas repeatedly pressured her to date him and made comments about her breasts when they worked together at the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission in the mid-1980s. She's one of multiple women who have accused Thomas of sexual harassment, including renowned law professor Anita Hill.

In more news on sexual harassment and assault, the co-founder of the fashion brand Guess, Paul Marciano, has stepped down after supermodel Kate Upton accused him of forcibly groping her breasts after a photo shoot in 2010. Guess's stocks have dropped more than 20 percent since Upton publicly accused Marciano a few weeks ago.

<https://www.radiohc.cu/en/noticias/internacionales/155843-woman-accusing-us-supreme-court-justice-clarence-thomas-of-sexual-harassment-calls-for-impeachment>

Radio Habana Cuba