

Syria downs Israeli rockets after Golan Heights shelled

Damascus, May 10 (RHC)-- Syrian air defenses have intercepted several rockets fired from Israeli aircraft after the Tel Aviv regime targeted Syrian army positions in the occupied Golan Heights.

Syria's official SANA news agency reported early on Thursday that a barrage of Israeli missiles was intercepted and that the Syrian air defenses were "confronting a new wave of Israeli aggression." Citing a military source, it added that Israeli rocket fire had hit a Syrian radar site and an ammunition warehouse.

The Israeli army claimed that some of the missiles fired from Syria had been intercepted and that the level of damage was "low." Earlier, Syrian media said that Israeli troops had shelled the city of Ba'ath in the southern province of Quneitra.

On Tuesday, Israeli missiles targeted Syrian army positions in the Kisweh area south of the capital city Damascus. Also on Tuesday, Israel instructed local authorities to "unlock and ready (bomb) shelters" in the occupied Golan Heights as U.S. President Donald Trump announced Washington's departure from the Joint Comprehensive Plan of Action (JCPOA).

Israel seized the Golan Heights from Syria during the 1967 Six-Day War and has continued to occupy two-thirds of the strategically-important territory ever since, in a move that has never been recognized by the international community.

The regime has built dozens of illegal settlements in the area since its occupation and has used the region to carry out a number of military operations against the Syrian government.
