

Cuba aims to Tokyo in an optimistic way

Havana, August 27 (RHC) – The spirit shown by the Cuban athletes in the Lima 2019 Pan-Am Games, is a satisfaction for Cuban sports fans. The national television program Mesa Redonda was dedicated this Monday to talk about the results of the Cuban delegation in the Lima 2019 Pan-Am Games.

Although some analyses have been done from the competitive viewpoint, some other deeper analyses will be done in the future, said Jose Antonio Miranda, Director of High-Level Performance at the Cuban Institute of Sports (INDER).

“It is necessary to give credit to the delegation for the way they faced the challenge in the Pan-Am Games”. Miranda added.

After discussing about the ups and downs of the Cuban performance in Lima, Jose Antonio Miranda said: “The Pan-Am Games are over, we are focused now on the Olympic Games, and we cannot stop doing what has given us good results, and that is strategy customization. We are customizing athletes, not sports”.

Explained Miranda, just seconds before mentioning that 41 Cuban athletes are expected to have good performances in the Tokyo 2020 Summer Olympics.

So far, there are 19 Cuban athletes that have qualified for the Tokyo 2020 Summer Olympics, divided into Athletics (8), Pentathlon (2), Sports Shooting (5) and Canoeing (4).
