

King of Eswatini arrives in Cuba on Sunday for official visit

Havana, September 27 (RHC)-- His Majesty Mswati III, King of Eswatini, also known as Swaziland, will make an official visit to Cuba starting this Sunday, September 29.

According to the Cubaminrex website, the visitor will hold official conversations with Cuban authorities and carry out other activities on the island.

Cuba and Swaziland established diplomatic relations on September 22, 1995 and currently 20 Cuban doctors offer their solidarity there.

The small landlocked sovereign nation of southern Africa has a population of just over 1,300,000, covering an area of 17,364 square kilometers, changed its name to Eswatini in 2018, and its monarch Mswati III - who is the head of state - came to the throne in 1986.
