

The Che that unites and inspires us

Santa Clara, October 4 (RHC) -- Dozens of musicians, performers and artists in central Villa Clara will join their voices and art on October 7 to condemn the genocidal US policy towards Cuba and pay tribute to Che. The artistic activities will be a confirmation that nothing can take away from the people the joy and the desire to move forward. That will take place on the eve of the 52nd anniversary of the death of the famous Argentinian-Cuban guerrilla who died in combat in Bolivia in 1967.

'It is a moment to show the strength and energy of Cubans before what our historical adversary has imposed on us, as well as the ratification of the commitment of Cuban artists and intellectuals to the Revolution ,' said Mejunje director Ramón Silverio, who is also one of the participants in the project named Supertanquero del Arte (Supertanker of Art).

That day in areas of the Leoncio Vidal Park and other places, musicians, writers, theater people, designers, dancers, poets and painters will meet to express their condemnation of the unfair and criminal blockade that seeks to put the Cuban people on their knees. Children's theater groups and artistic education system students will offer their art to participants and passersby, while several poets and the Mi Cocodrilo Verde ensemble will uphold the best values ??of the island's and central region's country music.

The Cuban Friendship Institute –ICAP- delegation in Villa Clara has joined the initiative with the show Tambores por la Paz (Drums for Peace). In the evening there will be a concert condemning the blockade, with the group Toques del Río and other guests, who will call a march on the 8th, with which the Villaclareño people will pay tribute to Che Guevara.
