

Cuba and Moscow universities to strengthen cooperation

Moscow, November 22 (RHC)-- The Rector of the Moscow State Technical University of Automobiles and Road Construction, Guennadi Kustarev, and the Counselor of the Cuban Embassy to the Russian Federation, Gustavo Cobreiro, exchanged views on the possibilities of cooperation and exchange in different specialties between the Russian Higher Education and similar institutions of the Caribbean island.

Kustarev expressed his willingness to increase the number of Cubans studying at that higher education institution.

He also gave Cobreiro a broad explanation of the potential of this center in fields such as logistics, pavement design, equipment for the construction and maintenance of highways and aerodromes, and traffic engineering, among others.

During the exchange, both sides recalled that between 1960 and 1990, hundreds of Cuban specialists were trained in Russia.

At the current course, the presence of Cubans returned to this campus with the arrival of 5 professionals to complete their master's degrees.
