Two prison guards face criminal charges over Jeffrey Epstein death

New York, November 22 (RHC)-- In New York, authorities have brought criminal charges against two prison guards who were on duty the night serial sexual predator Jeffrey Epstein reportedly hung himself in a Manhattan jail.

The indictments against them say the two guards were sleeping, shopping online for furniture and catching up on sports news instead of checking on Epstein and other prisoners every 30 minutes. The legal charges note that the guards then falsified prison records to claim they had performed their required rounds.

The guards have been charged with conspiracy to defraud the United States and with making false records.
