

U.S. Supreme Court rules Border Patrol agents who shoot into Mexico cannot be sued

Washington, February 27 (RHC)-- The U.S. Supreme Court ruled in a sharply divided 5-4 decision that the family of a 15-year-old Mexican teen killed by a U.S. Border Patrol agent a decade ago cannot sue the officer in federal court without the approval of the U.S. Congress.

In 2010, the teenager, Sergio Adrián Hernández Güereca, was shot across the El Paso-Juárez border by U.S. Border Patrol agent Jesus Mesa Jr. It's the latest example of impunity for U.S. Border Patrol officers who commit homicide across the Mexican border.

In 2018, a federal jury in Tucson, Arizona, found Border Patrol agent Lonnie Swartz not guilty of manslaughter for shooting and killing 16-year-old José Rodríguez through the U.S.-Mexico border fence in 2012.

<https://www.radiohc.cu/en/noticias/internacionales/215444-us-supreme-court-rules-border-patrol-agents-who-shoot-into-mexico-cannot-be-sued>

Radio Habana Cuba