

South African Archbishop Tutu says coronavirus exposes inequalities

Pretoria, April 28 (RHC)-- With over 4,500 confirmed cases, South Africa is one of the hardest-hit nations on the continent. Nobel Peace Prize winner Archbishop Desmond Tutu said the coronavirus has brought racial inequalities into stark relief.

Archbishop Tutu said: "The virus has done the country a ghastly favor by exposing the unsustainable foundations on which it is built. That must be urgently fixed."

<https://www.radiohc.cu/en/noticias/internacionales/221200-south-african-archbishop-tutu-says-coronavirus-exposes-inequalities>

Radio Habana Cuba