

Hundreds of people imprisoned in El Salvador quarantine centers demand release

San Salvador, May 7 (RHC)-- In El Salvador, hundreds of people detained in government facilities, allegedly aimed at curbing the spread of the coronavirus, held a protest demanding to be freed and be given the results of their COVID-19 tests.

At least 300 people have been held in two centers in the capital San Salvador for over a month as the Salvadoran government has been apprehending residents accused of violating the country's strict coronavirus lockdown.
