

Hunger-striking immigrant women released from California prison

San Diego, May 12 (RHC)-- In the U.S. state of California, over a dozen immigrant women have been released from the for-profit Mesa Verde detention center in Bakersfield after they held a hunger strike demanding they be freed from the squalid facility during the pandemic. Mesa Verde is owned by the private prison company GEO Group.

Meanwhile, jailed immigrants at Northwest Detention Center in Washington state have initiated a collective work stoppage protesting their worsening conditions inside the facility amid the pandemic.

<https://www.radiohc.cu/en/noticias/internacionales/222515-hunger-striking-immigrant-women-released-from-california-prison>

Radio Habana Cuba