

Israel reports over 1,000 cases of coronavirus in one day

Tel Aviv, July 5 (RHC)-- The number of new coronavirus infections in Israel has breached the 1,000 mark for the first time, according to figures published by the Health Ministry.

A record 1,107 new cases were registered on Thursday, the highest single-day caseload since the beginning of the pandemic. The previous record was registered Wednesday at 967.

Overall, 27,542 individuals have tested positive for Sars-CoV-2 in the country, with 9,600 active cases and 325 deaths, according to the ministry.
