

Temperature hits 130° in California, possibly highest ever recorded

Sacramento, August 18 (RHC)-- In the U.S. state of California, the thermometer in Death Valley hit 130 degrees, which may be the highest temperature ever recorded on Earth.

Scientists are working to confirm the reading, but say that the increase in record-breaking temperatures around the world is due to global heating.

This comes as California is battling 30 wildfires amid a record-breaking heat wave.

<https://www.radiohc.cu/en/noticias/internacionales/231992-temperature-hits-130-in-california-possibly-highest-ever-recorded>

Radio Habana Cuba