

Evo Morales celebrates MAS victory in Bolivian elections

Evo Morales celebrates MAS victory in Bolivian elections. (Photo: teleSUR)

Buenos Aires, October 19 (RHC)-- Former

Bolivian President Evo Morales celebrated the victory of the presidential candidate of his party, the Movement Towards Socialism (MAS), Luis Arce, in the general elections of this South American country on Sunday.

Upon learning the unofficial results that give Arce the victory with 52.4 percent of the votes, Evo Morales expressed his satisfaction through a message via Twitter.

The former president assured that MAS obtained a resounding victory, reaching a majority of representatives in both chambers of the Plurinational Legislative Assembly.

Morales had described the day as historic and recalled that the people managed to resist the coup d'état, two massacres and a de facto government with an administration marked by corruption and mismanagement of the health emergency.

Evo Morales was the campaign leader of the MAS in the electoral process carried out to restore the constitutional order in Bolivia, after the crisis that the country experienced a year ago due to the overthrow of the indigenous leader because of false accusations of fraud in his electoral victory.

<https://www.radiohc.cu/en/noticias/internacionales/237189-evo-morales-celebrates-mas-victory-in-bolivian-elections>

Radio Habana Cuba