

United Nations secretary-general warns impact of pandemic may last for decades

United Nations, December 4 (RHC)-- At the United Nations, Secretary-General António Guterres warned Thursday the world could be suffering negative effects from the pandemic for decades to come.

António Guterres said: "Let's not fool ourselves. A vaccine cannot undo damage that will stretch across years, even decades, to come. Extreme poverty is rising. The threat of famine looms. We face the biggest global recession in eight decades."
