

Cuba and Hungary expand trade relations

Havana, May 7 (RHC) Experts from the Chamber of Commerce of the Republic of Cuba and the Hungarian National Chamber of Agriculture held talks on the possibilities of expanding trade links in important areas for the economy.

During a virtual meeting, they advocated for consolidating support to business people in Havana and Budapest to boost business opportunities in agriculture, agro-industry, and the food sector, the Cuban entity published on Twitter.

Both parties analyzed the possibilities of supporting entrepreneurs from the two countries searching for business and investment opportunities in the agricultural, agro-industrial, and food sectors, tweeted the Cuban Chamber of Commerce.

Since the beginning of the 1960s, there has been a fluid exchange of high-level delegations and an active cultural, academic, sports, and economic-commercial relationship.
