

El Salvador expels Mexican journalist Daniel Lizárraga amid crackdown on dissent

Image not found or type unknown

San Salvador, July 9 (RHC)-- El Salvador's government has expelled prominent Mexican journalist Daniel Lizárraga after he led investigations into government corruption at the Salvadoran online news source El Faro.

San Salvador, July 9 (RHC)-- El Salvador's government has expelled prominent Mexican journalist Daniel Lizárraga after he led investigations into government corruption at the Salvadoran online news source El Faro.

In a video message recorded at the airport just before his expulsion to Mexico, Lizárraga promised El Faro would remain committed to independent journalism. Lizárraga said: “They will not silence us. It won’t happen. We won’t stop publishing. We’ll continue offering the best information possible, to the best of our abilities, as rigorously as possible.”

The Inter American Press Association and other press freedom groups have condemned the government of President Nayib Bukele for clamping down on dissent.

<https://www.radiohc.cu/en/noticias/internacionales/263364-el-salvador-expels-mexican-journalist-daniel-lizarraga-amid-crackdown-on-dissent>

Radio Habana Cuba