

Dr. Fauci warns new variant could emerge if pandemic not brought under control

Washington, August 9 (RHC)-- As the United States is once again averaging over 100,000 new daily COVID-19 cases due to the Delta variant-driven surge, top White House adviser Dr. Anthony Fauci warned of future variants that could emerge unless more people get vaccinated.

Dr. Anthony Fauci said: "If you give the virus a chance to continue to change, you're leading to a vulnerability that we might get a worse variant. And then, that will impact not only the unvaccinated; that will impact the vaccinated, because that variant could evade the protection of the vaccine."
