Photography Exhibition

Havana, October 27 (RHC)-- As part of activities on the 502nd anniversary of Havana –to be marked on November 15th--, the Víctor Hugo Museum hosts a photography exhibition entitled 'Miradas a La Habana' by French artist Franck Delorieux. It will remain open to the public through November 26th.

In statements to the press, the museum director Deivy Colina said Delorieux is a poet, essayist and journalist, editor of Les lettres francaises magazine, which has just released a new issue dedicated to cultural ties between the Caribbean state and the European nation.

The exhibition compiles photos taken by the artist in the Cuban capital, contrasting architectural styles and highlighting urban spaces, people's constant movement and other details that are usually invisible to the naked eye.

Curated by Marc Sagaert, General Director of Alliance Française in Cuba, the photography exhibition is organized by Alliance Française in Cuba, Víctor Hugo Museum, with support from the France-Cuba Association and the French embassy in Cuba.

The exhibition 'Miradas a La Habana' is available also on digital platforms and the website of the cultural institution.
