Havana, May 26 (JIT) - Cuba's Greisys Robles and Keily Pérez once again won prizes in the 100-meter hurdles in the incipient European athletics campaign, this time dominating the Huelva meeting, which brought together more than 150 competitors from 40 countries.

The young Cuban girls repeated the 1-2 of just three days ago in the Ibero-American of Alicante with Greisys once again passing first over the line, although this time in a photo finish.

The also champion of the past Junior Pan American Games of Cali 2021 closed with 13.03 seconds, the same time of her teammate Keily.

In Huelva, the discus thrower Mario Díaz also competed, who got the second place with a shot of 60.90 meters, behind the British Nicholas Percy (63.23).
