

Latin American Conference of Social Sciences meets in Mexico

Photo / Clacso

Mexico City, June 7 (RHC)-- The Ninth Latin American Conference of Social Sciences has been in session since Tuesday at the National Autonomous University of Mexico, with the attendance of 10,000 professors from the continent and special guests.

The event is made up of more than a hundred activities, 250 panels, 600 debate tables and a variety of theoretical and practical topics grouped in what the organizers call 34 axes for analysis and discussions.

As reported, the largest academic event in the social sciences and humanities in Latin America and the Caribbean will this year emphasize economic and social inequalities in the region.

<https://www.radiohc.cu/en/noticias/internacionales/289979-latin-american-conference-of-social-sciences-meets-in-mexico>

Radio Habana Cuba