

Cuba's Food Industry minister visits Belarus

Havana, April 8 (RHC)-- Cuban Food Industry Minister Manuel Sobrino arrived in Minsk on Friday as a follow-up to issues previously discussed, Cuban Ambassador Santiago Perez said.

During the working days of the Cuban delegation in the country, they will meet with Leonid Zayats, Deputy Prime Minister and Agriculture and Food Minister. They will also visit production centers, the Food Institute, and the Academy of Sciences.

The diplomat stated that Cuba and Belarus would re-establish relations in this sphere to generate strategic alliances, as Belarus is one of the major exporters of food industry products.

In addition to exploring opportunities Belarus offers, the Cuban delegation will also promote to the host's business sector, the potential of the island's food production system.

The Cuban minister and his accompanying delegation had begun this tour in Russia, where they also addressed issues related to food production and other common interests. (Source: Prensa Latina)
