

Jury selection begins in civil trial accusing Donald Trump of rape

In New York City, jury selection has begun in a civil trial against Donald Trump brought by author E. Jean Carroll.

New York, April 25 (RHC)-- In New York City, jury selection has begun in a civil trial against Donald Trump brought by author E. Jean Carroll.

The former magazine columnist alleges Trump raped her in a dressing room at a department store in the mid-1990s.

E. Jean Carroll can bring the case decades later because New York opened a one-year window on the statute of limitations for adult survivors of sexual assault. The judge in the case has ruled two other women who say they were sexually assaulted by Trump can take the stand, as well.
