

Artificial Intelligence will unite The Beatles

The new production will bring the prestigious Liverpool quartet back to the public.
Photo: Archivo/RHC

Havana, June 15 (RHC) --The members of the legendary group The Beatles are back together again thanks to the use of Artificial Intelligence (AI) that will make their latest recording available to their fans.

"The song features the voice of John Lennon and will be released later this year," Paul McCartney told the BBC.

The musical work was made by director Peter Jackson, who used a demo that belonged to the band's leader and founder, which according to the British media could be Now and then (1978).

Previously, Jackson used AI to create clean audio in the 2021 documentary Get Back.

"We were able to take John's voice and get it pure through this technology, then we mixed the song as we normally would," Jackson noted.

This new production will bring the prestigious Liverpool quartet back to the public after the release of Free As A Bird in 1995 and Real Love in 1996, whose original tracks were cleaned up by producer Jeff Lynne prior to recording.

<https://www.radiohc.cu/en/noticias/cultura/325674-artificial-intelligence-will-unite-the-beatles>

Radio Habana Cuba