First tourist flight of 2024 from the Russian company Rosnetf arrives in Cuba

Havana, March 30 (RHC) The first flight of this season from the Russian company Rosnetf, dedicated to the oil sector, arrived in Cuba, as reported by the International Group of Tour Operators and Travel Agencies Havanatur S.A.

In a press release, Havanatur explains that the Nordwind airline transported 389 Russian passengers to the Island to develop stay programs in what would be the first of three groups of the oil company for spring. So far, four other flights are scheduled for the fall.

The reception at the Juan Gualberto Gómez international terminal, in the province of Matanzas, was attended by the first vice minister of the Ministry of Tourism, María del Carmen Orellana, the Havanatur general director, Yoelkis Salazar, and other directors.

For more than 10 years, Havanatur has been the official receptive in Cuba of Rosnetf, which develops programs in the country to promote well-being and quality of life policies in its workers, as part of its corporate business tourism project.

Since the beginning of operations, Havanatur adopted the responsibility of meeting the oil company's expectations, and its activities are aimed at increasing living and health standards in natural settings. Hence, the increase in groups for 2024.

Rosnetf began its operations in Cuba in 2014 and selected the resort of Varadero, the main sun and beach area of ??the Cuban tourist destination, where they enjoy outdoor physical activities, excursions, and medical check-ups. (Source: PL)
