Caracas, July 14 (RHC)-- Venezuelan President Nicolás Maduro, in the context of his national tour ahead of the elections on July 28th, has called for the creation of a large national front, aimed at the search for peace, the economy, democracy and against fascism.

This call from the president took place in Guanare, a territory located in the Bolivarian state of Portuguesa.

Nicolás Maduro said: "We are the only ones who have a popular project for the transformation of this country. I extend my hand to all Venezuelans, to all Venezuelan women, to all the neighbors, so that we can unite a great national front against fascism and violence," the president stressed.

Likewise, he stressed that everyone "who wants freedom, peace, democracy and does not agree with fascism and violence, must unite.

Along the same lines, he emphasized: "No one will take away the right to peace from the people of Venezuela. No one will take away the right to the future from these youth," framing peace as a key point within his objectives as president.

"I tell you and I swear from my heart: I will never fail you. I will never leave you to your own devices. I will never betray the people."

Regarding the future vision of the country, Maduro indicated that the coming years will be one of "growth and construction for all," referring to the economic recovery that is to come.
