Cuba Ratifies Solidarity with the Bolivarian Revolution

Havana, Aug. 15 (RHC) Member of the Political Bureau and Secretary of Organization of the Central Committee of the Communist Party of Cuba (PCC), Roberto Morales Ojeda, on Thursday ratified his country's solidarity with the Bolivarian Revolution in the face of the intention to ignore the official results of the presidential elections held in Venezuela last July 28.

In a message posted on the social network X, Morales Ojeda reiterated his country's unwavering support for the head of state of the South American nation, Nicolás Maduro.

The party leader also referred to the interference of the United States, affirming that the attempts to disregard the will of the people are promoted by the government of the North American country.

The Cuban Ministry of Foreign Affairs recently denounced the irresponsible promotion of the return to the stage of violence and destabilization to promote a coup d'état against the powers of the State, with the agreement of international actors and sectors of the internal opposition, in order to overthrow the legitimate government of Venezuela.

"The Venezuelan people have decided to maintain their majority support for the option founded by Commander Hugo Chavez Frías and maintained in the face of threats and external aggression, under the leadership of President Nicolás Maduro Moros, the United Socialist Party of Venezuela (PSUV) and its allied parties," the statement said.
