

Trump's pick to lead U.S. military has tattoos linked to white supremacists and Nazis

Image not found or type unknown

Washington, November 14 (RHC)-- Concerns are mounting over Trump's pick to lead the Pentagon, Fox News host and military veteran Pete Hegseth.

CBS News reports that Hegseth was one of 12 National Guard members who were removed as guards for President Biden's 2021 inauguration over possible extremist ties.

Pete Hegseth has tattoos associated with the white supremacist and neo-Nazi movements, including what's known as a Jerusalem cross, a symbol used by Christian nationalists.

In related news, the government watchdog Accountable.US announced it's launching a "Trump Accountability War Room" to monitor Trump's appointments and executive actions as he takes up his second term.

[SOURCE: DEMOCRACY NOW]

<https://www.radiohc.cu/en/noticias/internacionales/369723-trumps-pick-to-lead-us-military-has-tattoos-linked-to-white-supremacists-and-nazis>

Radio Habana Cuba