

New Israeli law expands visa restrictions on BDS supporters and critics of war crimes

Tel Aviv, February 21 (RHC)-- Israel's Knesset has approved a bill to further restrict entry to critics of Israel and its policies.

Under the new law, people who deny or minimize the October 7th Hamas attacks will be refused visas; so, too, will people who've called for the prosecution of Israeli soldiers for war crimes or who are affiliated with groups calling to boycott, divest or sanction Israel.
