Havana, July 11 (RHC)-- An audiovisual material presented by the Television News program during its primetime broadcast on Thursday evening revealed compelling evidence about the operations of the "Cubaprimero" organization, directed from the United States by Armando Labrador Coro, who is identified as the main financier of acts of sabotage and terrorism on the island.

According to investigations, this group operates under the guise of a political movement while promoting violent actions against the country's civil and strategic institutions.

The audiovisual material revealed testimonies and evidence demonstrating how "Cubaprimero" has recruited and trained individuals to attack sensitive targets such as hospitals, schools, daycare centers, and energy infrastructure.

Among the main suspects are Armando Labrador Coro, owner of businesses in Miami that finance the operations; along with counterrevolutionaries such as Carlos Ernesto Díaz González, alias "Ktivo Disidente," and Miguel Gómez Bártulo, known as "Miki Terrori," who are behind the planning and execution of violent acts in the Caribbean nation.

The organization's modus operandi includes offering financial rewards to Cubans to commit violent acts, meticulously planning attacks through digital platforms, and using YouTubers to spread propaganda and recruit collaborators.

In the province of Cienfuegos, authorities arrested Yoennys Oro and others recruited by the group, who confessed to the sabotage plans designed from abroad.

While the perpetrators face judicial proceedings in Cuba, their financiers and leaders operate freely in the United States.

Armando Labrador stands out as the main financial backer of these operations, promoting a discourse of hate and violence that seeks to divide Cuban society.

Funds from businesses such as My Cosmetic Surgery and real estate properties belonging to the ringleader are used to promote violence in Cuba.

In addition to working with convicted criminals such as Carlos Ernesto Díaz, Labrador provides capital to YouTubers dedicated to distorting the reality of Cuba.

These individuals maintain ties to extremist groups that advocate for armed invasion.

Their connections with figures such as Marco Rubio, U.S. Secretary of State, underscore the complicity of political sectors in promoting subversion in Cuba.

The presentation of this evidence comes in the context of the update of the official list of individuals and entities linked to terrorist acts against Cuba, where "Cubaprimero" is identified as one of the most dangerous organizations due to its international ties and specific plans for violence.
