

Russian Senate Delegation to Visit Cuba

Moscow, Mar 14, (RHC), -- A delegation of the Russian Federation Council (Senate) headed by head of the Foreign Relations Committee, Konstantin Kosachiov, will visit Cuba next week, official sources informed.

The delegation, also made up by the vicepresidents of the Committee, Vitali Ignatenko and Andrei Klimov, will examine together with Cuban authorities the perspectives for bilateral cooperation and joint projects in the area of education, says the note published this Friday at the Senate's official website.

The program of the visit includes a speech by Kosachiov at the University of Havana before professors and students.

The delegation will also meet with government, People's Power National Assembly and ministries of Foreign Relations and Education representatives.

The delegation is also slated to meet with the Cuban Council of Ministers, Ricardo Cabrisas.
