

Greek Government Turns to State Entities' Cash Reserves to Avert Credit Crunch in April

ATHENS, March 27 (Xinhua) -- Greece's government has turned to the cash reserves of state entities and managed to secure enough funds this week to avert a looming cash crunch in April, local media reported Friday.

The decision came as the government has been seeking ways to boost its cash resources to meet imminent financial obligations as state coffers run out of funds with no international financial aid for months.
