

Google Web Browsing Tool-bar Debuts in Cuba

Las Vegas, May 8 (RHC) — A Google tool-bar to streamline tasks -- such as searching the Internet or bookmarking on-line pages with web browsing programs -- made its debut in Cuba, AFP reports.

The U.S.-based Internet colossus updated its Spanish-language blog to put out word that people in Cuba could download the tool-bar, which can be affixed atop browsers for quick access to Google services or capabilities when venturing on-line.

The development follows visits by Google's top executives last year when, in addition, the U.S. company made its Chrome web browsing program available for Cubans.
