

France's Hollande Arrives in Haiti Following Landmark Cuba Trip

Port-au-Prince, May 12 (RHC-AFP) -- French President Francois Hollande landed in Haiti on Tuesday to sign cooperation agreements and support reconstruction efforts that continue since the deadly 2010 earthquake.

Hollande is only the second French head of state to visit what was once France's richest colony in the Caribbean.

Hollande arrived in Port-au-Prince with ministers and secretaries of state and a big delegation from the private sector, and was greeted at the airport by Haiti's President Michel Martelly. Both leaders were slated to hold a joint press conference after their meeting.
