

Condor Airlines to Increase Flights to Cuba

Havana, June 16 (RHC)-- Germany's Condor Airline Company will increase flights to Cuba as of next winter, which will keep that country among the major tourist sources to Cuba.

In 2014, Germany became the second major source of visitors to Cuba after Canada, with over 136,000 tourists and a 20 percent growth, according to Cuba's National Statistics Office.

Condor airlines will now include a new weekly flight between Munich and Holguin and will also launch four new flights between Frankfurt and Havana, as well as a new one connecting Munich and Varadero.

Over 65,000 German tourists have visited Cuba so far this year, and the figure is expected to reach 150,000 by the end of the year.
