

Report Shows 95% of Elected Local Prosecutors are White

Washington, July 13 (RHC)-- A new study has revealed the vast majority of elected prosecutors across the United States are white. The study by the Women Donors Network found 66 percent of states that elect prosecutors have no African Americans in those positions.

Of the more than 2,400 elected state and local prosecutors in office last year, 95 percent were white and 79 percent were white men.
