

Former U.S. Vice President Al Gore Considering Possible 2016 Presidential Bid

Washington, August 15 (RHC)-- In news from the U.S. presidential campaign trail, former Vice President Al Gore is reportedly considering joining the 2016 presidential race. Gore lost the 2000 election to George W. Bush, despite winning the popular vote.

The speculation about a potential run in 2016 surfaces as both Democratic and Republican candidates are soapboxing at the Iowa State Fair this weekend.
