

Saudi Warplanes Hit Yemen's Hajjah, Killing Four People

Sanaa, January 7 (RHC)-- Saudi warplanes have bombarded areas in Yemen's Hajjah Province, where at least four people were killed. Yemen's al-Masirah TV said Wednesday that the Saudi bombers hit residential areas in the border region of al-Morzaq.

Hajjah is located in Yemen's northwestern region which has been a flash point since the regime in Riyadh started its bombardment campaign last March. The report said two other people were injured in the strikes.

Saudi warplanes also conducted combat sorties in the capital, Sanaa. Reports said the presidential palace and the city's main airport were targeted.

The Saudi campaign was meant to undermine the Houthi Ansarullah movement and restore power to the fugitive former Yemeni president, Abd Rabbuh Mansour Hadi. More than 7,500 people have been killed and over 14,000 others injured since the strikes began. The Saudi war has also taken a heavy toll on the impoverished country's facilities and infrastructure.

Sources close to Hadi claimed on Wednesday that at least 20 Ansarullah members have been killed in the strikes carried out on Sana'a in a time span of one day. Ansarullah has yet to comment on the figure.
