

Spain's Socialist Party Leader Loses First Bid to Form Government

Madrid, March 3 (RHC)-- The leader of Spain's Socialist Party, Pedro Sanchez, has lost his first bid to establish a government after failing to secure enough votes needed in parliament.

The Socialists were in need of an absolute majority in the Wednesday vote in the 350-seat lower house of parliament. However, they ended up with 219 votes against Sanchez, 130 in favor and one abstention. The conservative Popular Party (PP), led by acting Prime Minister Mariano Rajoy, and the Podemos Party voted against Sanchez becoming prime minister.

<https://www.radiohc.cu/en/noticias/internacionales/86106-spains-socialist-party-leader-loses-first-bid-to-form-government>

Radio Habana Cuba