

German Academics Express Interest in Preserving Cuban Heritage

Guantánamo, February 25 (RHC)-- Visiting professors of the University of Bamberg, in Germany, has expressed their interest in signing cooperation accords with Cuba toward the preservation of natural and architectural heritage.

During an exchange with professors and students of the University of Guantánamo, the European visitors offered their expertise and vast knowledge to collaborate in the restoration of colonial-era infrastructure in Maisí and Baracoa, two Cuban municipalities that were hard hit by Hurricane Matthew late last year.
