

Venezuela reveals evidence and plotters behind recent U.S.-backed coup attempt

Caracas, February 9 (RHC)-- Venezuelan Minister of Communications Jorge Rodríguez offered a press conference in which he showed evidence of the coup attempt by the right-wing opposition against the constitutional President Nicolás Maduro, with the participation of the United States and other governments.

The official revealed that thanks to a Venezuelan intelligence operation, retired Colonel Oswaldo Valentín García Palomo was arrested after he wanted to enter the country to organize a military coup.

He denounced that the U.S. and Colombian governments supported the coup attempts -- one in May 2018 in the framework of the presidential elections; and another in January 2019, which has now been defeated.

Rodríguez reported that García Palomo coordinated from Cucuta the 'regime change' operation and made numerous trips to Miami, despite an Interpol's request for capture by the Venezuelan government.

After his capture, García Palomo has given numerous statements and in view of the seriousness of his confessions, the Venezuelan prosecutor approved showing videos of his confessions to the public and the media.
