

Trump and Kim to meet in Vietnam for second North Korean summit

Hanoi, February 26 (RHC)-- U.S. President Donald Trump and North Korean leader Kim Jong-un arrive in Hanoi, Vietnam, today for their second round of talks on a possible denuclearization agreement.

The two heads of state are expected to meet over dinner Wednesday as they kick off the 2-day summit. Trump has repeatedly said Kim Jong-un will agree to completely denuclearize, despite U.S. intelligence officials claiming he is not likely to do away with North Korea's entire nuclear arsenal and that they may still be developing weapons.

North Korean officials have said they want the U.S. to remove sanctions on the country before agreeing to any deal.

<https://www.radiohc.cu/index.php/en/noticias/internacionales/184545-trump-and-kim-to-meet-in-vietnam-for-second-north-korean-summit>

Radio Habana Cuba