

In deathbed confession, plaintiff in Roe v. Wade admitted she was paid by abortion foes

New York, May 21 (RHC)-- In the U.S., the woman at the center of the landmark 1973 Supreme Court Roe v. Wade case ruling legalizing abortion has revealed she was later paid by the anti-abortion movement to become a prominent Christian anti-choice activist.

The late Norma McCorvey is seen in a new documentary making what she describes as a deathbed confession. She says, "I was the big fish. I think it was a mutual thing. I took their money, and they'd put me out in front of the cameras and tell me what to say. That's what I'd say. It was all an act. I did it well, too. I am a good actress."

The film "AKA Jane Roe" reveals McCorvey received at least $450,000 in gifts from the anti-abortion movement.

<https://www.radiohc.cu/index.php/en/noticias/internacionales/223421-in-deathbed-confession-plaintiff-in-ro-e-v-wade-admitted-she-was-paid-by-abortion-foes>

Radio Habana Cuba