The Cuban president noted how the TV network, which began as small operation in Caracas, has become a nightmare of the Empire's liars and the regional lackeys, and sent to its Chief Executive Patricia Villega, founders, journalists and technicians the encouragement and commitment of those who no longer know, nor can, nor will accept to live without Telesur.

"We embrace you in the distance as we witness with joy and enthusiasm the powerful flight of Telesur, 15 years after its birth, clearing the murky waters of the contemporary digital world, broadcasting to all continents in Spanish and English, in America, in Europe, in Africa, in Asia, and the Middle East", said the

President

Diaz-Canel concluded his congratulatory message to Telesur saying that the network can always count on Cuba, who considers itself seed, branch, and flower of this dream of integration.
